Halliburton Speaks Here Twice Next Monday

STEEL 'COMPANY UNION' DISSOLVED

Court's Rule Followed by Columbia

First effect of the supreme court's recognition of the National Labor Relations Act to be felt in Torrance was noted here this week in the form of a statement to all employees of the Columbia Steel Company from President A. N. Diehl. This was the discontinuance of the company's support and recognition of the Employee Representation Plan, commonly known as the "company union."

Columbia Steel's workers were notified Monday morning of the company's withdrawal from participation in or further recognition of the "Plans of Employee Representation" as they have heretofore existed. The Employee Representatives were notified that the company will no longer recognize them as spokesmen for employees.

This information was conveyed in the form of the following letter from President Diehl:

Discontinues Support

"There has been effective in all of the plants of the company a Plan of Employee Representation, an organization through which the employees in each plant engaged in concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection of employees. The company was advised, and believed, that these plans as constituted and as administered were proper and in conformity with law.

"Each of said Plans applied to only such of the employees as may have chosen freely and of their own volition to avail themselves of the machinery thereof for the presentation and adjustment of any matter which, in the opinion of said employees or any group thereof, required adjustment.

"On Monday, April 12, 1937, the Supreme Court of the United States announced its decision in certain cases, under which decisions it may be held that certain of the provisions of the National Labor Relations Act apply to the existing Plans of Employee Representation. To remove any question as to whether said Plans are in all respects in conformity with said Act, it is necessary that the company discontinue any financial or other support to the existing Plans or participation therein, and any recognition of any representatives elected thereunder as a representative of the employees. To this end and effective at once, the company

"(a) Will discontinue any financial contribution to the Plans.

"(b) Will not furnish any facilities for the election or other activities of the employees or representatives under the Plans.

"(c) Will not furnish any stenographic or other office service or facilities for the activities of the employees or representatives under the Plans.

Workers to Decide

"The provisions for amendment of the Plans require, in one form or another, the participation of the company in amendments of the provisions affecting the company. These provisions affecting the company are those relating exclusively to the company or to the joint procedure for adjusting grievances involving action by both the company and the employees or their representatives. These provisions are in those sections of the present Plan which relate to committees or joint procedure or which relate exclusively to company functions, such as articles V, VIII, IX, and X, and Paragraphs 5, 6, 7, and 8 of Article VI; Paragraphs 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, 8, and 9 of Article VII, and the final sentence of Article XI.

"The company considers that all such provisions of the Plan relating exclusively to it or to joint procedure involving action

Monday Rain Brings Total to 21 Inches

Lowering clouds late Monday afternoon hinted that the rainy season was not over yet and a few hours later their presence on the darkened horizon was more than a hint.

The downpour, which did considerable damage to new gardens and some new terraced lawns, added .26 of an inch to the season's total, making that figure 21.28.

Last year the last rain, on March 31, made the season's total 10.32 inches, according to the weather report kept at the high school.

Waste-Haulage to Be Banned

When the city council meets May 11 an ordinance which will prohibit the transportation of garbage in or thru Torrance by private individuals or firms is scheduled to be adopted. The law was read for the first time Tuesday night and was approved with an amendment that will allow such transportation after special permission is obtained from the council.

The amendment was inserted to make provision for any other adjoining city to convey garbage thru Torrance in an emergency. The prime purpose of the ordinance is to halt garbage-freighting of hogs within the city limits. The city retains the exclusive right to the collection and transportation of waste-matter here.

Utah Motorist Killed In Car Crash Friday

When his light car failed to make the curve on Highway 101 at Elena street, Redondo, William H. Treloar of Bursika, Utah, was killed at 1:30 o'clock last Friday morning. Officers Schumacher and Evans found the body on the pavement. Mr. Treloar was thrown clear of the machine as it evidently hurtled from the road.

Witnesses, who were William Day and Lyle Smith of Wilmington, told police they saw Mr. Treloar's car coming toward them at a high rate of speed, evidently out of control, a few seconds before it swerved from the highway.

No inquest was found necessary and the body was shipped to Utah Tuesday. Nothing could be learned here of Mr. Treloar's relatives.

Acceptance of Mural Planned

Plans are being made by Principal Thomas Elson and Miss Ada Chas, art instructor, for an acceptance ceremony at the high school on May 14 when the 34-foot mural painting by Miss A. Katherine Skeele in the school library will be formally presented to the institution by the Federal Art Works Project. Also the painting, which depicts the communal life of Hopi Indians at their pueblo near Taos, N. M., is not entirely completed, it has won enthusiastic praise from artists for its conception, design and coloring. Miss Skeele is seriously ill at the present time and for that reason has been unable to finish her work, which she started some eight or nine months ago.

Torrance Girl Leaves Friday for Coronation

Thrilled to the tips of her toes, Neva June Lowen, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Lowen of 904 Beech street, was busy packing today for the longest trip of her young life—a trip which many an older resident would dearly love to make.

She is going to the coronation, Neva, who is a sixth grade student at Fern avenue school, leaves tomorrow for New York City where she will sail aboard the S. S. Berengaria for England next Tuesday. Neva will be accompanied by Mrs. Roy P. Maubly, of Los Angeles, long-time friend of the family.

A chance to witness the pageantry of British royalty is not the only thrill in store for Neva. Later in the summer she and Mrs. Maubly plan to go to Paris to visit U. S. Ambassador William C. Bullitt, who is a personal friend of Neva's father. The little Torrance girl and her companion expect to return late in August or September.

Mrs. Maubly was a dinner-guest at the Lowen home Tuesday. Only a few minutes before had the Lowens consented to allow Neva to make the overseas trip. This Torrance will be represented by three residents at the coronation—Mrs. Tom Ramskill of 1608 220th street left for England Monday and A. J. Ritchie of 2108 Arington avenue departed for the same destination April 20.

The contractor was on the site with City Engineer Frank R. Leonard and Leonard J. Young, his assistant, surveying to set the stakes for the building which will house the Chamber of Commerce and serve other civic bodies when completed.

Later in the week a work of force building was moved to the front of the lot to provide headquarters for the builders. Actual construction work is expected to start the first of next week.

Two more resolutions pertaining to the WPA grant of $10,695 toward the building's cost were adopted by the city council Tuesday night. These put the city on record as formally accepting the Federal grant.

Paved Walk Extends to Lomita; Street Being Improved

That was a stroll available to pedestrians for the first time this week when the street department, under the direction of William Gascoigne, superintendent, completed laying the new walk from the city limits here to the northerly end of Lomita's concrete sidewalk along Narbonne avenue.

Approximately 1,400 feet of concrete were laid by the city crews. At the present time the same workers are putting in a five and one-half foot shoulder of rock and soil to complete the pavement of Narbonne avenue up to the new curbs.

Juniors Score With "Dulcy"; Night Performance Friday

A matinee performance of the junior class play, "Dulcy," at the Civic Auditorium this afternoon before a large audience of students and quite a number of adults revealed that the junior comedians have prepared a splendid entertainment for those who will attend the evening performance at the auditorium tomorrow (Friday) night at 8 o'clock.

"Dulcy" is the story of a scatter-brained young wife with many ideas. The queerest one is that of inviting a group of people, all with different interests, one with a strange fixation that he is a millionaire, to a house-party expecting them to get along together while she helps her husband put over a big business deal. In the first act "Dulcy," capably played by Norma Ssematar, nearly runs her husband, Carl Andrews, who gives a fine performance, into a nervous breakdown. In the second act she helps with an elopement, breaks up a happy home and makes a business deal that has a most unusual ending.

The last act sees them all happily made up and an amusing mystery solved. Other members of the cast, Addison Smith, Dorothy Jean Craig, Helen Smith, Wilbur Franklin, Jack Kent, David Powell, John Schmidt, Weston Leech and Akira Nakamoko are very good in their parts. The final presentation tomorrow night should attract a large crowd and when the curtain goes down for the last time, the junior class of 1937 will have added another hit to the list of class plays presented here, in the past.

Life Story Reads Like Page From His Own Books

Richard Halliburton was born at Brownsville, Tenn., Jan. 9, 1900. He was educated at Lawrenceville Preparatory School and at Princeton University, and was graduated from the latter in 1921. Several times before he took the vagabond trip around the world young Halliburton had been taken abroad by his parents, traveling in luxury. But immediately upon graduating he took himself off without benefit of money, made his way to Europe on a cattle boat and went completely on his own, an incurable romanticist.

In that first year of his wanderings he climbed the Matterhorn, was a prisoner at Gibraltar, lived the beach-comber's life in the East Indies, had an encounter with Chinese pirates and on his 23rd birthday amazed Japan by doing the impossible—scaling Fujiyama in mid-winter.

Found Modern Circe

He returned from that first vagabond journey and wrote the phenomenal best-seller, "The Royal Road to Romance." The book led in popularity for over three years the library lists of the country. At 24 he began to lecture and he is now one of the most popular lecturers in the United States. After a year on the platform, he was off again, this time to the isles of Greece, reliving the Odyssey. He swam the Hellespont, ran the Marathon, climbed Olympus and Vesuvius and followed the fantastic trail of Ulysses even to finding a modern Circe. Then he came back home and wrote his second book, "The Glorious Adventure," which in turn was as widely read as the first.

Once more he told of his joyous adventures via the lecture platform. His second tour took him all over the country where he found that the fame of his books had preceded him and that everywhere people were eager to know and see the young blond zestful man. Not for long

City Seeks Data On Water Service

Pointing out that the city is collecting 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation for fire protection and there are no water mains in the district, R. F. Geardt, spokesman for a committee of North Torrance residents desiring water service, told the council Tuesday night that immediate action is necessary to satisfy those living in that sector.

"We urgently request fire protection and at the same time, water at a nominal cost for service," he said. "If we don't get it soon, we intend to start legal action to recover what we have paid in taxes for fire protection."

Mayor William H. Tolson instructed City Attorney C. T. Rippey to obtain information at once on how the city can obtain water from the Maneta Mutual Water Company and assured Geardt that a special council session will be held as soon as this is determined. City Engineer Frank R. Leonard estimated it would cost about $6,000 to install a six-inch water main to serve the North Torrance families desiring water.

Geardt informed the board that nearly every resident is willing to contribute toward the cost of connecting with the main, this expense to be spread over a period of years. Leonard estimated that it would cost about $50 per house to meet service expense. Members of the council indicated that this extension of water service should be the first order of business for the city until the North Torrance folk are satisfied.
